Brussels for Breakfast (56): A breakfast discussion meeting on EU regulatory issues with Graham Bishop (grahambishop.com) and David Doyle (Brunswick Group). Tuesday, March 30, 2010, from 8:30-10:00am.

Last month's guest, Nicolas Veron, is a hard act to follow. But I am delighted that we have, once again, got David Doyle to agree to come over from Brussels, to join Graham Bishop – who will anchor our monthly meeting for the 55th time (out of 56).

David (as I am sure most of you know) is senior policy advisor in Brunswick's Brussels office. He specialises in the EU's financial services legislative and regulatory programme. He is a former (Irish) diplomat who has been in and around Brussels since before the flood. He is also a board member of the europhiles' paramilitary wing, The Kangaroo Group, but maintains his balance by participating actively in the US-EU Transatlantic Business Dialogue.

There is a lot going on in Brussels – and it is not just about Greece, or the constitutionality of loan guarantees. With a new Commissioner in post, and new Committee chairmen in the Parliament, Brussels has a lot to get through.

As usual, I can promise you a lively discussion – though, since this is as much an opportunity to pool knowledge as to listen, I hope others will do much of the talking. If you (or a colleague) would like to join us, please let us know by emailing sophie@csfi.org.uk or by telephoning 020 7493 0173. As usual, coffee, tea and buns will be provided

Sincerely yours,

Andrew Hilton
